Detailed Analysis

the water cycle is a very important process for everyone on earth it helps us get fresh water for drinking and farming first the sun heats water in rivers lakes and oceans this water turns into vapor and goes up into the sky this part is called evaporation as the water vapor rises it gets cold and forms small clouds many small clouds together make big clouds this is called condensation when the clouds become very full the water falls back to the earth as rain snow or hail this is precipitation in india rain is very important for farmers especially during the monsoon season without rain fields cannot grow crops like rice and water wheat the rainwater then flows into the rivers and goes back to the oceans or it goes into the ground to become groundwater this cycle happens all the time it shows how water keeps moving from the earth to the sky and back again understanding the water cycle helps us know why saving water is so important for our daily life and for the future of our country it ensures there it it ensures there is enough water for all people and animals
